Description

Learn about the ways that technology is enabling today's leading manufacturers to get the most out of their most valuable assets, employees.

You will experience a smart manufacturing demonstration that will showcase how your employees can spot shopfloor inefficiencies and identify actionable steps to: increase throughput, improve quality, increase consistency, reduce downtime, and improve efficiencies.

Presenter: Rony Kubat

Rony Kubat is a Ph.D. graduate from MIT with a research focus on applied machine learning. He was the first employee at Bluefin (acquired by Twitter). Before graduate studies, Kubat was a science and technology advisor for Hollywood film productions. He has been described by Wired Magazine as having a "steady low voice that could pacify a riot." He is a playwright and is a member of the Junkyard Wars team, the Geeks.
